RALEIGH IN BRIEF.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS IN AND AROUND THE CAPITAL.

Short Items of News Gathered on the Fly by the Chronicle's Reporters. The grand concert for to-night is the talk of the hour.

There are more than one hundred and ninety students at Wake Forest College. Brunswick county sent one new con-Vict to the penitentiary yesterday.

The finale of the concert to-night is a "Kinder Symphonie." Be sure to

Some of the weather prophets stood around with their hands in their pockets yesterday and almost swore it would ware called forth by the great contrast in the temperature of yesterday and the day before.

The CHONICLE has found by inquiring that there is a strong sentiment and preference for locating the Baptist Female college somewhere near the cen-

A lively gust of wind struck the city yesterday afternoon making the windows rattle fearfully and causing strong buildings to tremble. Immense clouds of dust were raised and the eyes and mouths of pedestrians took in considerable quantities of floating real estate. No damage was done, but the hearts of the timed quaked, and there were thoughts of a tornado.

A large crowd of people had a merry time for certain at the Capital Hose Company fair last night. There was prevalent a joyousness and gladsomeness that were contagious, and the contagion completely enveloped everybody who went to the hall. Another programme will be given to night. The Capital boys protect your property from fire. Show your appreciation by helping them now.

THE CHRONICLE was in error yesterday in stating that the delay in work on the new depot was caused by the N. C. division. The delay, we understand, is with Col. W. H. Green, of the R. & D. system, who has not yet submitted a plan to the committee. Col. Holt. chairman of N. C. R. R. has been ready all the time to act, and press forward the work. THE CHRONICLE wants to see the much needed depot built-built now, and in common with all the peo- following rates: ple of Raleigh we are restive over any delay.

nority report favoring the repeal of the

The matter was then open for discussion, Alderman Holding leading. He first referred to the licenses imposed on hackmen. He took the ground that this class of people paid their proportionate share of taxes exclusive of the license tax; and that there was no more justice in taxing them extra for the use of the streets than there was the owners of carriages, vehicles, &c , and these latter used the streets as the back men and draymen did. He further claimed that there was injustice in imposing a special license on the draymen, and then limiting them in the amount they should was what the city was doing. His further remarks were with reference to the injustice of specially taxing some classes of people and some businesses, while other classes and businesses were not taxed. His position was that tax was a burden imposed on the people for the support of the government, and that this burden should fall on each taxable person and business equitably and proportionately; and that the

Those who voted against the repeal of the licenses generally were Aldermen Grimes, Horton, Leach, Lumsden, Snelling, Ward and Womble. Those who voted for the repeal were Aldermen Bagwell, Bowes, Holding, Lee, Midsummer Night's Dream.

The same lady who has been in dreamland this week had a dream of flowers. She anticipates Swindell's opening today. In telling the wonderful dream she says: I dreamed that I was out in the country, and I saw the full moon rise in all its silvery glory, and then I looked about me and there were myriads of phantom beings, all dressed in white, dancing around May poles each one holding a long ribbon; and as they danced I could see millions of flowers 81 3-8. of all kinds, and there was no kind of flower in all the world that was not to be seen; all the trees in the woods were covered with flowers and the ground was covered with roses of all colors and from every branch of the trees hung long wreaths of orange blossoms. Then I thought these flowers began to change into trimmed hats, the most lovely Parisian styles that the French minds could produce; then I thought ribbons began to roll down and unroll in long streamers from the open air; then I thought all this vast accumulation of millinery paraphernalia was Swindell's opening to day. Of course the opening to-day will not be so extensive an outlay of millinery goods, but we can promise that it will be far the best exhibition of millinery ever shown in this city. All 5.90. are invited to see this exhibition. There will be some real French Hats direct from Paris. Furthermore our display of dress goods will be in keeping with the millinery exhibit at Swindeli's Racket Store to-day.
